Funding Snapshot

- Up until Q1 2025, Germany has seen €10.6 Billion of capital invested over 2,386 deals. (Pitchbook Q1 Germany Dashboard 2025)¹.
- However, female-only founder teams only received €243M over 133 deals, vs. Female and male founder teams accounting for €5.2 Billion over 862 deals. (Pitchbook European VC Female Founders Dashboard 2025)².
- In 2024, female-only founder teams only received 1% of VC funding investment volume, down from 2%, despite making up 4% of funded startups. (EY Startup Barometer 2025)³.
- In 2024, continuing the decline from the past few years, the percentage of startups created by women entrepreneurs in Germany fell from 20.7% to 18.8% (Deutscher Startup Monitor 2024).⁴
- According to the Dell Technologies WE Cities 2023 Report Berlin is ranked the N°15 city in the world for women entrepreneurs (out of 55) and 13th when it comes to access to capital. (Dell Technologies / S&P 2023)⁵.
- According to Pitchbook, the total amount of Capital invested in Berlin to May 2025 is €5.5 Billion over 995 deals, maintaining Berlin as the N°1 city in Germany for funding. Munich comes in second (€1.9 Billion invested, 327 deals) and Hamburg (€376M, 188 deals) (Pitchbook European VC Female Founders Dashboard 2025)⁶.
- In comparison, Berlin ranks 3rd in Europe behind Paris (1,724 deals) and London (5,031 deals)(Pitchbook European VC Female Founders Dashboard 2025)⁷.
- The Berlin ecosystem is ranked 15th worldwide (Startup Genome 2024)⁸.
- Berlin is ranked 10th in the world when it comes to Unicorns, with 17 to date (Deutscher Startup Verbund 2024)⁹.
- In 2024, Berlin saw 542 deals in startup funding, and 74 lead by female-only founding teams, accounting for only 12% of total startup funding that year. (EY Startup Barometer 2025)¹⁰.

Overview of Funding Landscape in Germany

In Q1 2025, VC deal value rose to €2.1 billion as deal count fell to 199 from Q4 2024 figures. Both figures align with recent quarters as a general slowdown in dealmaking has occurred in Europe. With current market conditions making funding tricky, we do not expect new records to be set in the near term. Dry powder in German VC funds (cash reserve that's waiting to be invested) sat at a record high of €9.1 billion as of Q3 2024 and could be used in the coming quarters. Q1 VC exit activity was sparse, with a value of €0.1 billion from 21 exits. Given market volatility because of US tariff uncertainty, companies eyeing an exit will likely postpone plans. However, the number of unicorns in Germany remains healthy at 21. Q1 2025 VC fundraising reached €0.4 billion, primarily driven by the €386.6 million Hitachi Ventures Fund IV.¹¹ According to Deutscher Startup Monitor 2024, 20.8 percent of German startups are headquartered in Berlin and 13.4 percent are based in Munich¹². 26.4% of social enterprises are based in Berlin.¹³

Interventions from the German government to foster competitiveness

The Growth Fund Germany, a $1.76 billion fund of funds to invest in German VCs, launched in 2023. The DeepTech & Climate Funds initiative also launched in 2023, allocating $1.76 billion to growth-stage companies in the two sub-sectors. In late 2023, the German government reported that 45% of its $32.3 billion startup strategy had been implemented. The initiative features 10 points to strengthen the country's position as a startup hub, including improving the availability of venture capital, tackling a shortage of skilled workers, and removing bureaucratic hurdles. (Startup Genome 2024)¹⁴

“Despite the steady growth of the European VC market, we are still lagging behind other global players. This gap is particularly visible for late-stage financing, especially in clean tech, quantum computing and AI. To meet our investment needs, we need to channel more money into the EU capital market. We need bigger funds with more firepower, and we need to attract more investors into venture capital.”

- Kerstin Jorna, Director General at the European Commission.
(European Women in VC Report 2024)¹⁵

According to PitchBook senior analyst Navina Rajan, the increased volatility in global economies due to the uncertainty around tariffs will lead to investor caution in Germany. Institutional allocators may shift away from higher-risk asset classes like VC into safer havens like bonds and real estate, which could hurt startup funding. A trade war between the US and EU would extend fundraising timelines and suppress valuations on both sides if risk appetite reduces. As you will see in the next sections, the federal and Berlin government have many resources to support Berlin startups in their funding and growth.

Berlin and Funding for Female Founders

The gender investment gap remains a persistent challenge across European startup ecosystems, with Germany facing particularly stark disparities. The UK, France, and Germany lead in funding for female-founded companies, while Finland and Denmark have the highest proportion of venture capital allocated to them.¹⁶ After five years of steady growth, the proportion of female founders in Germany's startup ecosystem has dropped to 18.8%.¹⁷ The downturn in consumer spending has hit business-to-consumer (B2C) startups particularly hard – a sector where women are more strongly represented. According to the EY Startup Barometer 2025 for Germany, female-founded startups received just €43M in 2024, a 58% decrease from €102M in 2023. Meanwhile, startups with all-male founding teams secured €6.2B, representing a €1.3B (25%) increase from 2023. A steep decline for female founders alongside significant growth for male founders highlights a widening gender investment gap. Female-founded startups now represent just 1% of total investment volume, down from 2%, despite making up 4% of funded startups.¹⁸

Key growth sectors in Germany include Deeptech, Cleantech and AI. The top 3 sectors in Germany where women founders are most represented are Agtech, E-Commerce and Education, whereas in Europe, health, fintech, and food continue to attract the biggest amount of venture capital investment going to female-founded companies. Three European female-founded companies – France's Newcleo and Pigment, and Germany's Cardior Pharmaceuticals—achieved unicorn status in 2024, joining 22 other female-founded companies in surpassing the €1bn valuation mark.¹⁹

Berlin is a city of reinvention and progress. Thirty-five years after reunification (1990), the capital of Germany is home to free thinkers and known for its artistic spirit. As one of 15 European cities featured in the WE Cities Index, Berlin ranked 15th in the 2023 Dell WE Cities ranking of 55 global cities. Berlin ranks ahead of fellow German cities of Munich, ranked 36th overall, and Hamburg, ranked 44th. In 2024, Berlin saw 542 deals in startup funding, with 74 led by female-only founding teams, accounting for only 12% of total startup funding that year. (EY Startup Barometer Germany 2025)²⁰

The city publishes its own Gender Data Report annually, gathering sex-disaggregated data since 2009 in cooperation with the Department responsible for Women's and Equality Policy and the Berlin-Brandenburg Statistical Office. This Gender Data Report is available to all those who are committed to gender equality in politics, administration, media and science as well as to the general public. An international market with residents from over 186 different nationalities and 49% of all startup employees being non-German citizens, Berlin has one of the most diverse workforces in the world. General Sources of Funding in Berlin and Germany

Dilutive

Non Dilutive

There are many diverse sources of funding for startups and scale ups in Berlin and Germany including VC funds, angel networks, funding platforms, accelerators and strong government programs supported by the German government and diverse grant-making bodies. Despite a common tendency for entrepreneurs to focus on venture capital funds and angel networks, women entrepreneurs are encouraged to explore both non-dilutive (where you retain equity, such as grants, debt) and dilutive (equity) options to fund and scale their businesses. Most startups build their headquarters from Berlin, whose funding ecosystem is quite well developed, with government bodies specifically focusing key resources to support Berlin-based startups and scale-ups. Overall, Berlin still captures the majority of funding in startups, with Munich and Hamburg hot on its tail. The Growth Fund Germany, a $1.76 billion fund of funds to invest in German VCs, launched in 2023. The DeepTech & Climate Funds initiative also launched in 2023, allocating $1.76 billion to growth-stage companies in the two sub-sectors. In late 2023, the German government reported that 45% of its $32.3 billion startup strategy had been implemented. The initiative features 10 points to strengthen the country's position as a startup hub, including improving the availability of venture capital, tackling a shortage of skilled workers, and removing bureaucratic hurdles. (Startup Genome 2024)²².

Dilutive

Let us examine the different dilutive general sources of funding available in Berlin and across Germany. A helpful place to start when looking for the main VC firms in Berlin is the Gillion VC Mapping of Berlin as well as the Waveup list of top VC firms in Germany. The High-Tech Gründerfonds \(HTGF\) is Germany's largest seed investor, focusing on high-tech startups, from AI, SaaS and deep tech to biotech. IBB Ventures is an early-stage venture capital firm investing in Berlin-based companies across consumer, software, industrial tech, and healthcare. Their focus is on pre-seed and seed stages, with initial tickets ranging from €200k to €1 million. In May 2024, Berlin introduced the BIG (Berlin InnoGrowth) program, allowing IBB Ventures (the venture arm of the main Business Bank of Germany) to co-invest alongside private investors in Berlin. This initiative focuses on green and digital innovation, offering equity investments and convertible loans to startups, reinforcing Berlin's position as a leading startup hub.

"At IBB Ventures, 29% of our portfolio companies currently have at least one female founder – well above the Berlin average of 19%. This reflects our conviction that entrepreneurial talent knows no gender and our commitment to backing visionary founders from all backgrounds. We're dedicated to actively supporting female entrepreneurs in shaping the future of Berlin's startup ecosystem – and we're determined to raise that 29% even higher."

– Clarissa Rossbach, Investment Analyst, IBB Ventures

As reflected in its 3rd place in Europe's funding scene, there are many VC funds in Berlin and Germany, investing in German and European startups. Global Founders Capital have made 995 investments, and other leading VC firms in the top 10 list include HV Capital, APX, Early Bird Capital and one of Europe's most established VCs, EQT Ventures. An early-stage venture capital firm, Cherry Ventures supports bold founders across Europe, including women-led startups, and Fly Ventures invests mainly in AI and machine learning startups. La Famiglia focuses on data and machine learning driven business plans and the future of work. Lakestar has just closed a recent $600M fund to inject in the next generation of European Startups, and Point 9 Capital and Speedinvest are major players in the Berlin and German funding scene, as are Wellington Partners and WestTech Ventures. Project A offers both capital and operational support, making them unique in the Berlin VC landscape. Capnamic focuses on early-stage investments in outstanding teams in the German-speaking regions, including women-led startups. WorldFund is Europe's largest climate tech vc with a €300M fund, AENU invest in intentional and ambitious founders who are building climate impact technologies and Leanox Impact Capital, co-founded by Paulina Jänsch is a leading impact VC. HPI Ventures (founded by one of the founders of SAP) invests in outstanding teams, Helena Capital invest in hybrid software+hardware solutions that modernize legacy industries such as aerospace, automotive, agriculture, space and defense and Tiny VC invest in ambitious tech startups at early stage, as do Coparion VC, a special public/private vc consortium. Last and certainly not least, Identity VC is the world's largest fund backing LGBTQ+ entrepreneurs in all sectors across Europe, including Germany.

While VC as an asset class is very well developed in Germany, it is a different story when it comes to Angel funding. If you are looking for Angel investors in Berlin, the first place to start is the Business Angels Club Berlin Brandenburg \(BACB\).

"The BACB does not see itself as a stage for symbolic decisions or female washing, but as a platform for real progress. Since 2025, every pitch participation requires a soft commitment from our angels - to ensure that the time of investors, but above all of startups, is not wasted. The focus is not on show or political staging, but on real connections, meaningful investments and sustainable development. Somehow we have managed to achieve a 50-50 ratio - without artificially intervening and that's great!"

– Angelika Knopf, Head of Startup Dealflow, BACB (Business Angels Club Berlin-Brandenburg e.V)

Business Angels Netzwerk Deutschland \(BAND\), Germany's national association for business angels, actively promotes female angel investing through initiatives like the "Women Angels Mission '25" and the "Golden Aurora Award" for Europe's Female Angel Investor of the Year. Spoti Angels is a syndicate of former Spotify managers, investing in early-stage startups in Berlin and you should also explore EBAN, the European Business Angel Network.

Given the lack of angel funding, Berlin has many excellent accelerators available to help you scale your company offering investment for equity, such as Carbon 13, Germany's climate tech hotspot, with their signature Venture Builder programme. Antler has a Berlin program, EWOR is a place where the most extraordinary people find mentorship, network, and capital to solve the world's toughest challenges and Techstars Berlin focuses on Deeptech startups. A key player in the Berlin landscape, Hubraum is Deutsche Telekom's tech incubator and also be sure to check out Wayra (Munich-based). Although Plug and Play have now finished their Berlin Accelerator with Axel Springer, their programs in Hamburg, Munich and Stuttgart are still very well worth taking a look at. Finally, Spinlab, the HHL Accelerator based in Leipzig, supports eHealth, energy and smart-city startups.

Other dilutive sources of funding to explore include equity crowdfunding websites such as Crowdcube Germany, Funder Nation, Invesdor, OneCrowd (formerly Seedmatch), Companisto and Startnext, the largest crowdfunding platform in the German-speaking world. Finally, Mittelständische Beteiligungsgesellschaft Berlin-Brandenburg \(MBG\) is a hybrid debt funding /private equity financing partner, also well worth investigating. They participate in financing SMEs in Berlin and Brandenburg by providing loans, capital and guarantees to secure or further expand their market position.

Non Dilutive

There are several general non-dilutive sources of funding available in Berlin and Germany. Unite Berlin is a resourceful public-private partnership consortium of science and research and strong business and societal partners, with ambitious goals to support entrepreneurship in Berlin. They offer diverse services to support the Berlin startup and research ecosystem. The Berlin Innovation Agency is a great one-stop-shop to access many different innovation services the city has to offer, helping you curate your own unique initiative with building blocks including Innovation Hubs, Bootcamps, startup partnering, project acceleration, event, community and more.

IBB, the business development bank of the Federal State of Berlin, offers very helpful grants and supports to tech, digital, creative or sustainable startups based in Berlin including: Gründungsbonus & Pro FIT, and the CoachingBonus. Often the Gründungsbonus is a gateway to accessing other supports in Berlin, so it's well worth exploring. A key scholarship available to Berlin startups is the Berlin Startup Stipendium awarded at the Berlin School of Economics and Law (HWR Berlin). This scholarship is funded by the European Social Fund (ESF) as well as the State of Berlin (Senate Department for Economic Affairs, Energy and Public Enterprises). In addition to financial support, each scholarship includes the use of the infrastructure of the Startup Incubator Berlin and the HWR Berlin. The EXIST Business startup grant supports university graduates, scientists and students to prepare tech-oriented and knowledge-based startups.

When it comes to debt financing including loans, the Berliner Sparkasse offer business and other financing instruments for your startup. The IBB Berlin Start Loan offers very early stage companies a low-interest loan even if you don't have a lot of collateral, to help you get started. When you are further on your funding and scaling journey, the Berlin Innovativ PLUS from IBB offer loans up to €3M at a low interest rate to finance investment and working capital. KfW also offer Startup Loans and the Sparkasse also offers lines of credit via their KK-Linie offering. Re:cap empowers the digital economy to make better financial decisions with one platform for debt funding, financial operations, and liquidity management and Gillion also offer different types of loans and an excellent market insights via their improved platform.

Accelerators that do not take equity include The Drivery, a mobility accelerator that helps startups in the mobility sector scale, K.I.E.Z accelerator focuses on accelerating AI startups, and the Impact Hub Berlin, supporting and accelerating impact startups for the last 10 years. Motion Lab is Berlin's premier innovation hub and makerspace for Hardtech, art and creativity and the Merantix AI campus aims to become Europe's leading central hub where AI innovation happens.

Some key annual startup events in Germany and Berlin where entrepreneurs can connect with potential investors and partners include: DeGut, Germany's largest trade fair for entrepreneurship and startups, now in its 40th year, E-Commerce Berlin Expo for e-commerce startups and Deeptech Momentum for deeptech startups. Bits and Pretzels (based in Munich but Germany & Europe-focused) is also a key event. The North Star event at Gitex is Europe's largest inaugural tech, startup and digital investment event, is held in Berlin with a Founders Summit, Venture and Corporate Innovation Summit. The K5 Female Circle is a major event for women in the retail world in Germany.

Top Sources of Funding for Women Entrepreneurs in Berlin/Germany

Dilutive

Non Dilutive

As you will have read in the stark statistics at beginning of this report, Berlin and Germany still has a long way to go when it comes to funding women entrepreneurs, with only 1% of VC going to all female-founder teams in 2024. Despite Berlin being the 3rd biggest funding ecosystem in Europe, female-founder focused sources of funding are still very rare. However, there are some beacons of light in the ecosystem.

Dilutive

Auxxo is the Berlin-based only German VC fund dedicated to investing in female-founded pre-seed and seed stage startups across Europe.

"We must create a world where our daughters don't just dream of leading publicly listed companies – they see it as entirely within reach. The most powerful way to make that future a reality is by investing in the women who are building the next generation of industry-defining companies."

– Dr. Gesa Miczaika , General Partner at Auxxo Female Catalyst Fund

Although based in Vienna, Fund F also invests extensively across the DACH region including Germany. The key angel networks focused on investing in women founders are The Evangelistas, Female Investors Network \(FIN\) by Gateway Ventures (awarded the Female Finance Award from FOCUS MONEY in 2023) and newcomer Encourage

Ventures, a Berlin-based investor network focused on supporting female founders through funding and mentorship.

Non Dilutive

Grace Accelerator in Berlin is the first ever 8-month, equity-free program specifically designed for early-stage female founders and mixed-gender teams. It provides a €2,200 monthly grant, mentorship, and a supportive community, making it a significant initiative promoting female entrepreneurship in Berlin, operating for a few years now.

“Dedicated initiatives for women are essential, but lasting change demands a collective shift across the entire startup ecosystem. Only by rethinking access to resources and creating inclusive structures can we unlock the full potential of innovation, ensuring that every founder has the opportunity to thrive. While structural transformation is key, each of us has a role to play by acting as allies and actively shaping a more equitable entrepreneurial landscape.”

– Leonie Moss, Head of Grace Accelerator

Coco Frauen Grunden is a 12-month program to encourage and support women to turn their projects into reality, through coaching and workshops. The Berlin Startup Stipendium Women supports female founders and non-binary people who have a prototype and/or an MVP and are in the process of preparing for market maturity. The aim of the funding is to establish the company and launch the startup on the market. 1-4 female founders/non-binary persons per team receive 2,200 euros (gross) per month per person for 9 months as well as access to the Startup Incubator Berlin workshops, prototype workshops and other resources. The Cartier Women's Initiative is a gold standard annual international entrepreneurship program that aims to drive change by empowering women impact entrepreneurs. Founded in 2006, the program is open to women-run and women-owned businesses from any country and sector that aim to have a strong and sustainable social and/or environmental impact. The winners receive up to a €100,000 grant as well as other excellent resources and access to a powerful global network of fellows. Lastly, the Goldrausch Frauennetwork offers interest-free microloans to women entrepreneurs, particularly those over 45 or with migrant backgrounds.

Other Resources for Women Entrepreneurs in Berlin/Germany

While more sources of funding for women are indeed lacking in Berlin, there are many other communities, networks, accelerators, events and resources available to women founders.

Let's begin with general communities and platforms that can be useful to help you network and grow your business. If you want to start a company in Germany online, Startbereit, fueled by Berliner Volksbank, helps set you up in days, with both a business and a bank account. Ahoj Berlin is Berlin's One-Stop Solution for startups, offering a vibrant hub for growth, collaboration, and innovation and a great place to start. HPI Engine fueled by the Hasso Plattner foundation, is a leading student accelerator, equipping the next generation of tech leaders with the skills, mindset and experience needed to launch successful tech products while driving economic and societal impact. Charité – Digital Health Accelerator of BIH a dedicated digital health program within a leading hospital, to empower clinicians and researchers to turn their visionary ideas into impactful digital solutions. Vision Health Pioneers Incubator guide you through the key phases of product development and go-to-market launch, through coaching and mentoring. 1.5 degree Ventures offer everything needed to successfully launch and scale effective climate tech start-ups including access to markets and the ProVeg Incubator is the world's first and leading accelerator for plant-based, fermentation, and cultivated food startups. They invest in your startup for equity.

Looking expand to new markets in Berlin and Germany? The following resources should be helpful. The German Accelerator help German companies internationalize and scale into leading innovation hubs in the U.S. Asia, Latin America, Africa and Europe. AmCham Germany (American Chamber of Commerce in Germany) helps German companies access the U.S market and have been running Female Founders Award for the past 6 years. Chambers of Commerce and Industry \(IHK\) – offer programs and networks specifically for women entrepreneurs, and the French Tech Berlin have a great community, regularly organising events to help members meet. ESDP (European Supplier Diversity Program) empowers ethnic minority businesses across European Markets, helping them access corporate supply chains. They certify ethnic minority businesses in Germany as well as other countries and WeConnect International have a Europe/Mena program to certify women owned businesses and help them access corporate supply chains. Startups looking for co-working or office spaces should consider the following options: Betahaus , MindSpace and Scaling Spaces offer co-working or private offices to startups in Berlin. Located in Berlin's Mitte district, CoWomen is Berlin's first coworking space specifically geared towards women's requirements.

Prominent Communities for Women Entrepreneurs

Even if there is a lack of actual female-founder focused sources of funding in Berlin and Germany, there is a number of prominent communities for women entrepreneurs, that can help female founders build their network, both locally and internationally. Most organize events, give more visibility to women founders and help build certain key skillsets through tailored support.

The VdU \(Verband Deutscher Unternehmerinnen\), founded in 1954, has a longstanding history of advocating for women entrepreneurs in Germany. With over 1,800 members across various industries, VdU offers a robust platform for networking, mentorship, and business development and have regional and localized support for the Berlin/Brandenburg region. Gründerinnenzentrale, a Berlin-based advisory center provides women with resources, counseling, and networking opportunities to start and grow their businesses. It serves as a vital first point of contact for aspiring female entrepreneurs. Businettes was created in 2019 by founders for founders, offering the largest community (6000+), business academy, and events such as an annual Female Founders Summit. Female Founders Space has organized over 300 events, including workshops, webinars, networking, and co-working days in 13 European cities across 9 countries. Amela is a global network and support platform for women entrepreneurs. They regularly hold Morning Club meetings in Berlin. Women in Tech Berlin provides all the content and networking opportunities needed to flourish in the tech sector and Global Digital Women Berlin create impactful events such as Female Empowerment Day and more. It facilitates professional exchange and visibility for women in the creative industries.

Areas for Improvement

Even though Berlin is a thriving hub of diverse and multicultural talent, in the top 3 ecosystems for funding and N° 15 worldwide in the ecosystem and best cities for women entrepreneurs rankings, there are still opportunities for improvement. When looking for funding, it is good to use Berlin as a springboard, but it's equally important to connect with federal schemes, EU-level funds, and international angel syndicates, as there simply aren't enough angel networks in Germany yet. Given the current Berlin and German funding landscape, women founders are advised to target the general sources of funding mentioned, not only the tiny number of resources focused on funding women entrepreneurs. It is also worth looking at other more developed funding ecosystems such as London and Paris, where women-focused sources of funding may invest Europe-wide. Also explore the non-dilutive sources of funding and accelerators. Even though Berlin ranks n°1 worldwide on culture in the Dell WE Cities 2023 Report and is well known for its diverse talent and population, there is so much more to the city than its breathtaking array of Museums and 3 UNESCO world heritage sites. Berlin as a startup hub is truly alive and kicking – let's encourage the city to foster even more funding resources tailored to women entrepreneurs, so it can continue its momentum in the startup funding ranking ecosystem.
